This autobiography is one woman's journey which spans from Scotland to Canada and then New Zealand. Her story will help you to learn from clichés that should not be ignored. Listen to the lessons from our past which are still relevant to this day. This story will explore the social predator and expose him as a rapist with words. He is the pretend Prince Charming, who tries to impress, usually the vulnerable woman, whose life had become a little mundane and lonely. This story will help you recognize the signs of the social predator who will charm your pants off pretending to be everything you have ever dreamed. What you won't realize until it's too late is that he is doing this to every woman he meets. How do you spot this predator? Read this short story and you will learn.

"People were created to be loved. Things were created to be used. The reason the world is in chaos is because things are being loved and people are being used."

Dalai Lama
