After Jess leaves Annie McCracken's grave site for the last time after hunting down the men responsible for her death and sending every one of them to the devil, he finds himself helping a couple with a young boy who are being robbed out on the trail. He escorts them to a small town in Texas.

While there, he runs into a rich and very spoiled woman who is being guarded by four tough guards and riding in a fancy custom coach. Jess starts putting things together and discovers that a bunch of thugs are waiting to ambush the coach and kidnap her, but before he can get to the coach, he's too late and the rich woman is gone.

He ends up receiving a wire from the rich woman's husband, Tripp Parker, who hires Jess to rescue his wife from Larkin and his bunch and he agrees to allow a former Texas Ranger, Stan Cooke, to ride along with him and take down Pence Larkin and his gang and get Mrs. Parker back safely.

Jess is hell bent on serving up some cold justice to Larkin and his bunch, but it proves to be a tougher job than he thought. Jess and Cooke travel from one town to another to find the men who took her and his plan is to deliver nothing short of cold justice at the end of a gun barrel.
