Davis should be having the time of her life; she's on the last leg of her vacation in France with her boyfriend of six years and they're just about to visit her favorite city. However, when Simon decides to temporarily part ways with her in Nice, Davis must "enjoy" the Cote d'Azur alone. Try as she might to make the best of an unfortunate situation, her attempts to find the silver lining don't pay off until a chance meeting with a gorgeous stranger has the potential to take the blues away...and then some. There's just one catch: she speaks English, and he speaks Italian. But, as Davis soon discovers, sometimes you don't need words to speak the language of love. Will she take the opportunity to master a new tongue or will she lose out on becoming fluent in the ways of the heart?
