'When Fates Conspire,' set in Montana and South Dakota, is a contemporary, fantasy about fate, soul mates, and fairness. With humor and pathos, it tells of two couples, two kinds of love, with three spirit guides overseeing and arguing --with very different ideas about life's purpose.

The story really begins when Lauren returns to Billings looking for something that never happened for her in high school. When the man she had always wanted re-enters her life, all the exciting energy between these ancient soul mates is aroused. Can they finally get a happily ever after or will it end as it always has?

In Bozeman, Jessica is frustrated that the man she promised to marry, Cole Morgan, won't give her the advantages his riches could provide. How far will she go to get what she wants? Tragedy is the only possible result or is it?

This story came directly from a dream, with several powerful images and concepts. The question, which I hope readers will be asking when they finish, is what do you think life is about? 131,567 words
