Zipper, Buttons, and Bows Moira Butterfield

Every little kid is challenged by zippers and buttons, laces and snaps, buckles, and all those other things that hold clothes together. This charming book is filled with delightful illustrations of kids getting dressed, and each illustration has something special about it. Full-color pictures feature such items as a real sewn-in button with a cloth buttonhole, a real sneaker shoelace to tie into a bow, metal snaps to snap, and a real zipper to zip. These zippers, buttons, and bows are parts of the book's big, full-color pictures that show playful kids getting ready to go outside for fun and games. Their story is simple but charming. Every kid who opens this book will find a brand new set of storybook friends, along with zippers, buttons, and bows so they can practice dressing all by themselves.
